

ANDREW VETOR

EXECUTIVE VICE PRESIDENT,
EMPLOYEE BENEFITS

Andy Vektor began his insurance career in 2002 as an employee benefits consultant at MJ Insurance and quickly grew to become one of the agency's top performers. His track record for growth and leadership has continued to develop throughout his career, as he became one of the youngest partners in company history. Andy was named executive vice president of our Employee Benefits department in 2013 and was appointed to the Value Creation Team – a team charged with providing the strategic direction for the firm – that same year.

Andy's expertise lies in consulting group clients on cost-saving benefit solutions. He works with his clients to truly understand their business and designs innovative solutions that align with the company's corporate goals and objectives. Andy has a broad base of specialties including employee relations and communications, benefits technology, plan design analysis and consumer driven health plans, along with extensive experience in the development and implementation of employer sponsored onsite clinics and wellness programs. At MJ Insurance, Andy and his team work to provide value and unparalleled service to all of their clients, a longstanding value that continues today.
